Press Release

The Cluster Headache Support Group Announces Change in Executive Leadership

Tammy Rome will succeed Chris Hannah as President. Chris Hannah will remain on the Board of Directors.

Fountainville, PA, August 1, 2016: Friday, July 29, 2016 The Cluster Headache Support Group (CHSG) announced today that Tammy Rome has been appointed President effective immediately. Rome recently served as Senior Vice President. As President, she succeeds Chris Hannah, who will remain on CHSG's board of directors as Founder.

Hannah described his vision for Rome's leadership, "Her leadership and strong ties across the [headache disorders advocacy] community will undoubtedly springboard CHSG, Inc. into the next generation of what a support group can be – an integral part of the research and healthcare process and a compassionate support and information portal for...the patient."

Hannah shared that under their joint leadership, CHSG's Facebook page reached a record-breaking 100,000 visitors in June. Hannah credits this milestone to Rome's initiative to include CHSG in this year's Migraine and Headache Awareness Month. Her initiative posted daily infographs online that shared important facts about cluster headache. Visitors were encouraged to share this information across all social media outlets.

"CHSG, Inc. has emerged as world leading support, information, advocacy, and research network for those suffering Cluster Headache, reaching those who suffer alone to help them cope, learn new methods, and reduce the impact of this insidious disorder on all our lives," said Hannah. "We have accomplished so much more along the way, including introducing new treatment options that are working at a major medical center, soon to be more broadly available at least for chronic, intractable sufferers. We developed strong bonds with several key players in healthcare, pharma, biopharma, and with emerging new companies that focus on the patient as central to the overall healthcare process. We have partnered with those who have the capital and wherewithal to make a difference not just one by one, but for all cluster headache sufferers here forward. We are on track with our initial mission and then some."

In response to the announcement Rome shared, “I am honored, humbled, and to be honest, a bit intimidated. You’ve left some pretty big shoes to fill. I only hope to preserve your legacy and continue your great work as we move forward. It is my privilege to work with our members to build a better tomorrow for all cluster headache patients and their families.”

About Tammy Rome

Tammy Rome (Shawnee, KS) is a headache disorders advocate, prolific writer, and a cluster headache and migraine patient. Her work appears on her personal blog, Brain Storm, and at Migraine.com. She works tirelessly to educate headache and migraine patients, teaching them how to improve patient-doctor communication and quality of life.
